COLLEGIATE WEEK TO LAST SIX DAYS

(By Associated Press)
EUGENE, Ore., Mar. 16.—Proposals to adopt a 6-day collegiate week at the University of Oregon here have split the campus into two camps, one for the move and the other against it.

Under the present system classes are held on five days a week, leaving Saturdays free for student activities. Proponents of the plan say best use could be made of the large investment represented in the university by having Saturday classes. Those opposed to the scheme declare it would mean destruction of university spirit by checking student activities and would also curb research work by members of the faculty, much of which is done on Saturdays.

Our job department is up to the minute and the most complete in the state. Satisfaction guaranteed and prompt service assured.

BLUE SKY LAWS ARE MENACE TO FORTY STATES

Lull to Sleep Caution of the Investor and Are Snare and Delusion

STATUTES POLITICAL FARCE

Only Such Propositions as Can Crawl Under Political Wire Get Consideration.

By LETSOV BALLIET
Economist Engineer

A survey of the blue sky laws of 20 states that have such laws in force discloses the startling fact that less than 1 per cent of all the companies that have been permitted to sell their stock by the blue sky commissioners have returned the amount of the investment. Eliminating interest bearing bonds, which pay interest out of the money received from the sale of the bonds until it is all gone, less than 4 per cent of the corporations selling stock under blue sky permits have returned any part of the investment. Over 23 per cent of the corporation selling bonds have gone into insolvency and the bonds are worthless.

Of all the corporations that have returned the full amount of the investment, with one exception, all are mining companies. Tire and rubber companies, manufacturing companies, and mercantile companies have failed one after the other. One

Something to Think About
By F. A. WALKER

GOOD MANNERS.

A WISE Italian says that you can tell how civilized people are by the way that they behave in the street. He adds that if a man is considerate of his neighbor it shows that he has a proper respect for himself.

If a French peasant brushes against a stranger in the street or on the road, he touches his hat in apology. This sensitiveness to the rights of others is not found everywhere else in the world.

In fact, the tendency to hustle and bustle, to push others out of the way, has been growing of late nearly everywhere.

Gilbert Frank, the novelist, is so irritated by what he calls the bad manners of the day that he regrets the good old days when everybody carried some sort of weapon and was ready to use it, if offended.

Undoubtedly a man with a sword who was not inclined to fight would be careful about knocking against another who was similarly armed.

The Chinese have a proverb that "The fear of death is the beginning of discipline."

If this is true, there must be something in the theory that when people gave up wearing capes and pistols, they became undisciplined and careless.

In the same way, though the use of arms tended to cheapen human life and to encourage bragging and bullying, dueling and brawling, it also had an effect on manners.

In the wild Western "movies" politeness and "gums" go together and, as a row is settled offhand, without waiting for the sheriff with his star, everybody is very careful not to "start anything."

If a man may be insolent, selfish or unchivalrous without running any personal risk, there is a chance that he may go through life like a bull in a china shop.

But when everybody attended to his own quarrels, it was overdone, and false standards of "honor" were set up as in the case of dueling customs of certain European armies.

It is probably better to rely on the policeman and the law when we suffer an injury.

AUSTRIA GETS TIME PAYMENT OF LOAN

state has granted over 700 permits to sell stock, not one of which has ever returned a dollar, and most of them are out of existence.

The blue sky laws, framed for the protection of the public that cannot protect themselves, seem to make conditions even worse for investor.

These commissions, are political appointments, which allow members of the commission and their friends to have pleasure trips with pay. Men of no experience and who couldn't make a living in any private business, are expected to know all about mining and oil geology, ore treatment and the business which it takes years of study and the most technical education to be able to handle. They must know all about the rubber business, the automobile business, the insurance business and every other business in the world. Some smart fellow, he must be.

The blue sky laws are a snare and a delusion. They lull to sleep the caution of the investor, who is led to believe that because the blue sky permit is obtained that it is a safe and good investment. As a matter of fact no really good proposition with tangible assets of value dares to make itself subject to the jurisdiction of the laws of 40 states for the shyster lawyers could start 99 suits in the justice courts in every township. It would break the Standard Oil company hiring lawyers to defend these suits. They could be settled for less than they could be defended, and countless suits without any merit at all would ruin any company whether settled or defended. Therefore only companies without any tangible assets really dare to accept blue sky jurisdiction. Hence the greater percentage of losses under blue sky permits than without. Only such propositions as can crawl under the political wires get the permits, and the suckers bite more heavily, thinking that safety is assured by the permit.

The prohibition law, and the blue sky law, both prohibit the good and leave only the rottenest and worst stuff obtainable. If you want to buy good liquor it is necessary to go to Canada, Cuba, Mexico, Europe or some country where the prohibitory conditions do not jeopardize money invested in legitimate liquor production. If you want good stocks you must send outside the states where prohibitory conditions jeopardize money invested in legitimate, meritorious industries.

Some 35 or 40 states have blue sky laws and to get a permit requires about $400 expense money. As some political grafter must make a trip to see a property he would know nothing about after he did see it. Forty states permits would require $16,000, and the sucker that buys the stock has to pay for it indirectly. If the company had that much money most of them would not bother about selling stocks.

The intent of the blue sky law is all right, but they have been framed by politicians who never were promoters, never were builders of industry. Men who have "sucked the public tree" all their life are not constructive. They do not know how to frame laws that will foster the growth of industry and build activity for labor and capital. They make laws against both, instead of for both.

If Chas. M. Schwab and Joseph Tynan, undertake to establish a steel rolling mill or to float a bond or stock issue, why should it be necessary to send the son of some politician out to look at the ground where the plant is going to be built? What would he know about the steel industry even though he saw the plant in operation? Schwab and Tynan have spent a life time learning the business, and if this political junkster knew enough about the matter to be competent to make a report, he would be in the employ of the steel company at $25,000 a year and not making trips for $100 a month and expenses.

If John Hayes Hammond, Herbert C. Hoover, Benjamin Winchell or any other of the accredited engineers make a report on a mine, why is it necessary to send the political junkster out to investigate it, when he couldn't tell the difference between quartz rock and galena, nor know the difference between a flotation tank and tube mill? All this expense, plus the entertainment of the political expert, is an expense that the promoters must advance, and get it back from the investors of the state, that is hobbled with blue sky laws.

Legitimate, meritorious enterprises backed by competent men who have spent a lifetime in the business, will not stoop to entertain and bribe representatives of blue sky politicians into approval.

It rather have Hammond, Hoover, Winchell, or any reliable, competent engineer's report than the reports of all the political junksters in the country.

The blue sky laws have all been absolute failures. They have lured investors into the wildest schemes that the political experts could devise, and prevented them from making many profitable investments.
